BOOK AND JOB PRINTING.

[From the Century.] I have a beautiful home Baside the freshest sea, And angels are went to come On neighborly visits to me

They come in the morning grey; They come in the evening red; They walk with me by day, And at night sit round my bed.

I've an orchard smoothly limbed, And eastle slook and cloan-A garden neatly trimmed, And a lawn forever green.

And the house within is sweet As milk yet warm in the pail; There's the sound of children's fee But never of children's wail.

ls a perfect eastward room: There the mornings encliest peep

With an order of clover bloom My study the daintiest nook-On the wall no idle mark; And if I want a book

I can find it in the dark. When neighbors of heat complain There is coolness in my hall; And no matter how hard the rain,

I've nothing to do but enjoy; Work does itself in my plan

I live like a heedless boy, And dread to be a man I see the night draw on, And the sweet stars open their eyes;

I see the morning dawn I see my cattle fed In the pasteres dewy green;

I see men mowing the mead. Such is my beautiful home, morn, "mother," wearied with many-
